CLARITAS
SOLUTIONS

The question over buying or building software is still raging. Is there a perfect answer? Claritas has been working with both private and public sector organisations to understand what the right strategy is. Often it is the culmination of both. There are standard off the shelf applications and services already doing the tasks that you require, such as accounting, word processing, email etc... however, to ensure your business remains unique, you will need customised software, whether that be web based applications for your clients, changes to standard packages, or internal systems that integrate with a multitude of other systems, Claritas has extensive knowledge and know-how in helping businesses harness the most from applications.

Addressing custom software is a challenge. A clear understanding of your business requirements is crucial. We have the expertise to help you ask the right questions and deliver the right answers. We have gained extensive experience in this area by taking on and recovering failing software solutions. We know why software works, and we know why it fails.

We are here to guide you through the many pitfalls of software customisation and delivery.
